ITEM 1 VOLUNTEER COMMUNITY TRANSPORT PROGRAMS – [55511]

RESPONSIBLE DIRECTOR: Mr Clayton Higham
Planning and Community Development

PURPOSE

To provide the Seniors Interests Advisory Committee (SIAC) with information about models of Community Transport Programs that engage volunteers.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

At its meeting on 4 June 2008, the SIAC requested that a report be provided on successful Volunteer programs run by other organisations that offer services to seniors. This report outlines examples of volunteer programs offered by other local governments in WA and other States and some that operate in the United States of America. The report outlines the provision of affordable transport for seniors in communities.

It is recommended that the Seniors Interests Advisory Committee NOTES the information provided in this report.

BACKGROUND

The request for this report was the result of discussions at the last SIAC meeting about the provision of affordable transport for seniors. Although the request was to provide information about models of volunteer programs in general, the specific focus was Community Transport.

DETAILS

The provision of Community Transport to assist seniors in the community that experience difficulty using public transport is common throughout Australia and other western countries. Most Community Transport programs are co-ordinated by the local government or a community organisation and rely heavily on volunteers to implement the service.

The City of Joondalup offers a community transport program that has 15 volunteers and 2 buses.

Features of the Volunteer Community Transport program models are:

- Local governments or community organisations provide co-ordination, administration, volunteer recruitment and insurance cover;
- Volunteers drive buses, council cars and/or their own vehicles;
- The service is provided at low cost to the clients;
- Clients are provided with door to door service to shopping centres, senior citizens clubs or medical appointments and sometimes social excursions;
- Volunteers receive a small reimbursement for travel and meal expenses.

The Beverly Foundation in California in the United States implements its community transport program with one difference – the seniors wishing to use the service recruit their own volunteer driver – who is usually a neighbour or friend. The neighbour or friend registers with the program so they have insurance cover, training and support from the Beverly Foundation.

The program achieves higher levels of success because the senior person has an established relationship with their driver, thus eliminating stranger and trust issues.

Community Transport Programs that utilise volunteers have more similarities than differences. Information about programs provided by sampled Local Governments and community organisations in WA, other states of Australia and the US are summarised in the table below:

Issues and options considered:

Whilst the City provides a Community Transport program that enables seniors to go to shopping centres and senior citizens clubs, there is no provision for assisting them to attend medical appointments. There is one program in the northern region that provides a taxi-booking service at a subsidised cost, however, the eligibility criteria is restrictive and subsidised places limited.

This issue is identified as a gap in service provision. In order to address the gap, a feasibility study would need to be conducted. This study could identify how many seniors experience difficulties accessing affordable transport for medical appointments, community organisations that may wish to provide a service and funding avenues for service provision. The City could facilitate such a process and advocate on behalf of seniors in the community.

COMMENT

It has been identified that seniors in the community experience difficulty accessing affordable transport when they need to attend medical appointments. Anecdotal evidence suggests that some seniors have not received their treatment because they could not access transport to attend their appointments.

Further work would need to be undertaken to understand the extent of this service gap and whether the City has any role in facilitating a solution. Additional services, whether provided by the City or some other provider have implications which need to be understood. The options and implications will be considered as part of the City's Seniors Plan review.

ITEM 2 ADOPT A PENSIONER WEBSITE – [55511]

RESPONSIBLE Mr Clayton Higham
DIRECTOR: Planning and Community Development

PURPOSE/ EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

To provide the Seniors Interests Advisory Committee (SIAC) with information about the new Adopt a Pensioner website.

It is recommended that the Seniors Interests Advisory Committee NOTES the information provided in the report.

BACKGROUND

The Adopt a Pensioner website was initiated in May 2008 after the Commonwealth Government announced its budget. The website was promoted on national television and currently has 6,927 registrations.

DETAILS

The Adopt a Pensioner website is located at www.adopt-a-pensioner.yourwebsite.com.au. Pensioners who need help with shopping, transport, getting to medical appointments or just want someone to talk to, can register by filling out a simple form online. Members of the community who want to provide support and assistance to a pensioner can also register.

Once parties are registered they can access the database and make contact with someone that lives close to them and matches their needs. It is a self-selection process.

Whilst the website could be seen as a well intended initiative, there are potential risks for seniors. The website creators take no responsibility for anything. There are no warnings on the website to remind seniors that the people they are connecting with may not be genuine. Vulnerable seniors could be exploited by individuals with ulterior motives.

The concept behind the website, however, could be really worthwhile if a community organisation were to take it up as a project. Community organisations which provide services to seniors would interview the person before placing their name forward for assistance. There would also be a process for screening potential helpers, insisting on Police clearances and ensuring the person has a genuine interest.

COMMENT

Many seniors in the community are isolated, experience difficulty with accessing affordable transport or just want some company. There are also many people who would like to help someone and do not know how to go about finding the right person to help. A service that can bring together people who need help and people who want to help could be worthwhile as long as it is professionally and ethically organised.
